

Commissioner Angela Burns

Commissioner Angela Burns was elected and sworn-in to the Delray Beach City Commission in March 2023.

Angela Burns is a proud member of Delray Beach's Newman family, with roots dating back to 1908. She is a former public-school teacher with 34 years of experience, many of which were spent at Village Academy, where she served as a trusted mentor and leader in the community.

Angela has a long history of advocacy for Delray Beach homeowners, small businesses, and the community at large. She has served as chair of the School Advisory Council at Village Academy and served on the Affordable Housing and Library Boards as well as two terms on the Education Advisory Board.

As Commissioner, Angela Burns is focused on keeping the city that she has called home for over six decades a great place to live, work, and raise a family. She plans to bring a fresh voice and diverse perspective to the Commission and work on the issues that unite Delray Beach.

Angela Burns is a proud mother of three adult children and received her bachelor's degree from Bethune-Cookman University and a master's degree at Nova Southeastern University.
